South Asia should be a nuclear weapons free zone

In 1998 that is 24 years back on 11th May India carried out firs ar weapon test under the Vajpayee government. The even elebrated with fanfare: public was jubilant over that India ha: low become a nower to reckon with. Those who termed the even ust after 17 days on 28th May Pakistan too did the same. Observer felt that Pakistan has become at par with India in nuclear weapon race. Mood of the supporters of nuclear weapons in the country of subdued. Some experts argued that India who had superiority or Pakistan in conventional warfare has lost that since both countries have become nuclear armed. Exact figure unknown but there ar estimates that both have 100 plus nuclear weapons each. Th uclear lobby argued that these weapons will serve as deterrent t war between the two countries who have been having perpetu ension since long. This hypothesis however was proved wrong as in bout a year there was war between India and Pakistan at Kargi front in 1999. Terrorism from across the border continues unaba ed. There was terrorist attack on the Indian Parliament after which armies of the two countries were face to face on high alert with fear of use of nuclear weapons looming large. Possession of nuclear weapons has not deterred standoff between India and China either There were skirmishes between the two at Galwan in June 2020 Now the nuclear lobby is actively propagating that if Ukraine had nuclear weapons, Russia would have not attacked. South Asia omprises of eight nations: India, Pakistan, Bhutan, Nepa Bangladesh, Afghanistan and the island nations Sri Lanka and th Maldives. Although South Asia occupies only 3.4% of the world's land area, the region is home to approximately 24% of the world's population, making it the most densely populated place on earth. Despite being rich in natural resources, it is among the poores egions of the world in terms of per capita income, with 40% of the vorld's poor living here. Still countries of the region especially Indi and Pakistan spend lot on arms race. Expenditure on nuclea weapons adds to their defence budget. As a result the countries o the region are left with little to spend on health, education and levelopment. Arms race in the region on the rise. With the ambi ion to become arms exporter India has already signed a $375 mil lion agreement with Philippines to supply supersonic shore-based anti-ship BrahMos missile system with a range of 290 km developed ointly with Russia. Reports are that more such agreements are lik ly to be signed with Vietnam and Indonesia. With China acquiring export arms. After China made its first nuclear bomb in 1964, then movements have multifaceted tasks ahead. They have to build strong public opinion for disarmament. Medical peace activists have to explain how the arms race is affecting our health adverse-ly. ways, including by training them to find illicit drugs, dangerous goods and even people. In recent years, a dog's sense of smell has also been used in the medical field. These remarkable animals can be trained to sniff out cancer, diabetes, and extraordinarily, epileptic seizures before they occur. Early in the pandemic the possibility of using dogs to sniff out COVID was explored in a few countries. And although the results of these early trials surpassed most people's expectations, many questions remained. These included how well these findings would stand up to more rigorous scientific scrutiny and how well dogs would perform outside the artificial environment of the research laboratory. South Asia should be a nuclear weapons free zone

In 1998 that is 24 years back on 11th May India carried out firs ar weapon test under the Vajpayee government. The even elebrated with fanfare: public was jubilant over that India ha: low become a nower to reckon with. Those who termed the even ust after 17 days on 28th May Pakistan too did the same. Observer felt that Pakistan has become at par with India in nuclear weapon race. Mood of the supporters of nuclear weapons in the country of subdued. Some experts argued that India who had superiority or Pakistan in conventional warfare has lost that since both countries have become nuclear armed. Exact figure unknown but there ar estimates that both have 100 plus nuclear weapons each. Th uclear lobby argued that these weapons will serve as deterrent t war between the two countries who have been having perpetu ension since long. This hypothesis however was proved wrong as in bout a year there was war between India and Pakistan at Kargi front in 1999. Terrorism from across the border continues unaba ed. There was terrorist attack on the Indian Parliament after which armies of the two countries were face to face on high alert with fear of use of nuclear weapons looming large. Possession of nuclear weapons has not deterred standoff between India and China either There were skirmishes between the two at Galwan in June 2020 Now the nuclear lobby is actively propagating that if Ukraine had nuclear weapons, Russia would have not attacked. South Asia omprises of eight nations: India, Pakistan, Bhutan, Nepa Bangladesh, Afghanistan and the island nations Sri Lanka and th Maldives. Although South Asia occupies only 3.4% of the world's land area, the region is home to approximately 24% of the world's population, making it the most densely populated place on earth. Despite being rich in natural resources, it is among the poores egions of the world in terms of per capita income, with 40% of the vorld's poor living here. Still countries of the region especially Indi and Pakistan spend lot on arms race. Expenditure on nuclea weapons adds to their defence budget. As a result the countries o the region are left with little to spend on health, education and levelopment. Arms race in the region on the rise. With the ambi ion to become arms exporter India has already signed a $375 mil lion agreement with Philippines to supply supersonic shore-based anti-ship BrahMos missile system with a range of 290 km developed ointly with Russia. Reports are that more such agreements are lik ly to be signed with Vietnam and Indonesia. With China acquiring export arms. After China made its first nuclear bomb in 1964, ther novements have multifaceted tasks ahead. They have to buil strong public opinion for disarmament. Medical peace activists have to explain how the arms race is affecting our health adverse ly. The message of the study by Dr. Ira Helfand, Co-Presiden PPNW on climatic consequences of limited nuclear war using 100 Hiroshima sized atomic bombs between India and Pakistan, which would put over two billion people at risk, has to be taken down to the masses as well as the decision makers. Steps need to be taken he masses as well as the decision makers. Steps need to be take or a lasting peace and nuclear disarmament in the region the non-aligned movement, which was initiated by the first Prim Minister Jawahar Lal Nehru along with Marshal Tito of Yugoslavi and Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt. The basic thrust of this move ment has been non alignment from any blocks, based on the princ ple of respect to sovereignty and integrity of other nations. India also proposed the Rajiv Gandhi action plan for nuclear disarmamen ways, including by training them to find illicit drugs, dangerous goods and even people. In recent years, a dog's sense of smell has also been used in the medical field. These remarkable animals can be trained to sniff out cancer, diabetes, and extraordinarily, epileptic seizures before they occur. Early in the pandemic the possibility of using dogs to sniff out COVID was explored in a few countries. And although the results of these early trials surpassed most people's expectations, many questions remained. These included how well these findings would stand up to more rigorous scientific scrutiny and how well dogs would perform outside the artificial environment of the research laboratory.
