BRIEF
Artillery destroyed
■ Moscow: The Russian military says it has destroyed a Ukrainian artillery system by the West in the latest round of strikes on Ukrainian targets. Maj. Gen. Igor Komashenko said Tuesday that the Russian artillery hit a Ukrainian artillery system by Norway and two other artillery systems given a barrage aimed at grinding down United States. He said that the Russian artillery destroyed the Ukrainian equipment in the country's east while the Russian air force hit Ukrainian troops and equipment concentrations and artillery positions. Komashenko's claims could not be independently confirmed.

Step up ties
■ Tokyo: Japanese and NATO officials agreed Tuesday to step up military cooperation and joint exercises as the two nations see that Russia's invasion of Ukraine is causing a security environment in Europe and Asia.

Minister Nobuo Kishi said after meeting with NATO officials Tuesday that Japan has stepped up ties with European countries and will expand NATO cooperation to two weeks in office, but will not be a world leader. The country first when New Zealand Prime Minister Jacinda Ardern described the bilateral relationship between the two nations as a partnership of equals. Bauer's visit in Tokyo comes as Japan's Maritime Self-Defense Force is participating in NATO naval exercises in the Mediterranean Sea.

Suspected terrorists
■ Lahore: Nine suspected terrorists belonging to different militant organisations were arrested by Pakistan's security agencies in the Punjab province, authorities said on Tuesday in the Counter Terrorism Department (CTD) Punjab. Police said it had conducted extensive operations across the Punjab to arrest any militant groups in the Caribbean as she welcomes them to Los Angeles this week. But whether she can demonstrate her clout at the hemisphere's largest gathering being held in U.S. soil for the first time since 1991 remains an open question. Since Joe Biden's days of crossing Latin America as president, the region's leaders have come to expect direct contact with the White House. However, Biden's reluctance to take on the task, which progress has been slow, the region has seen little high-level contact, reports say of larger U.S. interest of the region. In recent days, the president has been working the phones to shore up attention among leaders who have been critical of the U.S. decision to exclude top authoritarian governments of Cuba, Nicaragua and Venezuela from the summit. But the effort has yielded few results. Among those staying home are the presidents of Mexico, Guatemala and Honduras who only three leaders have been invited to the summit. Biden has not yet taken trips to the region.

Rate hike
■ Canberra: Australia's central bank on Tuesday lifted its benchmark interest rate to 4.25% in five weeks, changing the rate from 3.85% to 4.05%. When the Reserve Bank of Australia lifted the benchmark point at its last monthly board meeting on May 3, it was the first rate hike in more than 13 years. An increase was widely expected after official data in April showed that Australia's inflation rate rose to 6.8% in the year through March. It is the highest annual rate since 2007, when a newly introduced 10% federal consumption tax caused inflation to spike to 8.7%.

Los Angeles, June 07: Vice President Kamala Harris will have an opportunity to connect with leaders from Latin America and the Caribbean as she welcomes them to Los Angeles this week. But whether she can demonstrate her clout at the hemisphere's largest gathering being held in U.S. soil for the first time since 1991 remains an open question. Since Joe Biden's days of crossing Latin America as president, the region's leaders have come to expect direct contact with the White House. # Russia sends in more troops and barrage of eastern Ukraine

Kyiv, June 07: Russia is deploying troop reinforcements in eastern Ukraine to help capture a key city as Ukrainian forces are repelled by Moscow's artillery kept up a barrage aimed at grinding down Ukrainian defences. Luhansk governor Serhiy Haidai told the Associated Press that Russian forces control the industrial outskirts of Sievierodonetsk, one of two cities in the Luhansk region still in Ukrainian hands. Toughest street battles continue, with varying degrees of success. Haidai said. The situation constantly changes, but the Ukrainians are repelling attacks.

Rior firepower, the Ukrainian defenders among them the country's most well-trained forces are entrenched and have the capability to counterattack. Moscow's strategy has suffered numerous setbacks, however, since Russia in a series of offensives, including a failed attempt to take Kyiv, the capital. Moscow's forces also kept up an artillery barrage of Lvychansk, a city close to Sievierodonetsk which is almost fully controlled by Russian troops. Haidai said Russian troops shelled a local market, a school and a college building, destroying the latter. Three wounded people were sent to hospital. Haidai said. The Russian air force hit Ukrainian troops and equipment concentrations and artillery positions. This intensifies fighting over the past 24 hours. Russians are using extensive air, earth tactics, Haidai said.

New Zealand PM to visit Australian counterpart in Sydney

Canberra, June 07: Australia's new Prime Minister Anthony Albanese has held his first meeting with New Zealand Prime Minister Jacinda Ardern. The two leaders of the United States, India, Japan and other Pacific Island nations, which were being established in the South Pacific. China and other nations have expressed there will be any military base. International relations have rarely been as tight as this, even called upon the

Los Angeles, June 07: Vice President Kamala Harris will have an opportunity to connect with leaders from Latin America and the Caribbean as she welcomes them to Los Angeles this week. But whether she can demonstrate her clout at the hemisphere's largest gathering being held in U.S. soil for the first time since 1991 remains an open question. Since Joe Biden's days of crossing Latin America as president, the region's leaders have come to expect direct contact with the White House. However, Biden's reluctance to take on the task, which progress has been slow, the region has seen little high-level contact, reports say of larger U.S. interest of the region. In recent days, the president has been working the phones to shore up attention among leaders who have been critical of the U.S. decision to exclude top authoritarian governments of Cuba, Nicaragua and Venezuela from the summit. But the effort has yielded few results. Among those staying home are the presidents of Mexico, Guatemala and Honduras who only three leaders have been invited to the summit. Biden has not yet taken trips to the region.

J-K killings leave security set up shaken

It recent spate of targeted killings in Kashmir Valley has made the security establishment sit up. The high-level meeting in Delhi with Home Minister Amit Shah taking stock of the situation with J&K Lieutenant Governor Manoj Sinha a day after his interaction with national security adviser Ajay Dev and intelligence officials is quite significant. The security of Kashmiri Pandits living in the Valley was discussed at length at the meeting. The meeting was chaired by Shah, who took stock of the prevailing situation in Jammu and Kashmir. These meetings were convened in the wake of eight targeted killings by terror groups especially Lashkar-e-Taiba in the Kashmir Valley whose victims included non-Muslims, security personnel, an artist and local civilians. Scores of Kashmiri Pandits were employed under a prime minister's package in 2012. He was staging protests threatening mass exodus since the killing of Rahul Bhat, who was shot dead by terrorists on May 12 in the Chadorra area of Budgam district in central Kashmir. Bhat's killing sparked demonstration by around 6,000 employees at various places who demanded their relocation outside the Valley. Two persons - a bank employee and a truck lift labourer - were injured in Kashmir on Thursday while another labourer was injured in two separate incidents. The bank manager was the eighth and the labourer was the ninth victim of targeted killings in Kashmir since May 1. A woman teacher hanged from the Samba district of the Jammu region was shot dead by terrorists at a school in south Kashmir's Kulgam district in the last week. She had entered a wife shop at Baranulla in North Kashmir and threw a grenade, killing one person from the Jammu region and injuring three others, Police said. The woman teacher was arrested and held in Srinagar on May 24 while television artist Arvind Bhat was gunned down in Budgam two days later. The primary purpose of acts of terrorism is to instil fear and terror. While the priority to provide safety and security for Indians within an Indian Union territory is top priority, efforts to ensure that an atmosphere of panic does not lead to the mass exodus of non-Muslims from Kashmir from the Valley. At stake is not just the safety of the communities under attack in Kashmir but the larger objective of these efforts to polarise the Indian public mind on the line of the government's policy of not allowing Kashmiri Pandits to leave for Jammu' would be ham-handed. The horse of mass migrants and non-fundists left safe again must be the primary objective of the government's policy. Every one is in agreement that terrorism needs to be stopped in its track before it starts feeding on itself again. The blame game is the latest and the most common excuse for terrorism - eight killings over one week - helps no one, certainly not the migrant or minority residents in the Valley, who are understandably scared. The blame game is making less sense in the current context of 'negligence' of beleaguered Kashmiri Pandits and present conditions must not cloud the real objective to stop the people in Kashmir feeling unsafe. The government must conduct a review and initial assessments for assembly polls in J&K are being made. Holding security review meeting meticulously is the right way to about terrorism. The government must conduct a review in terms of logistics, security and law enforcement. This means not only bringing the outfit's responsible to book, but also using the intelligence machinery to track future acts of terrorism. The government with the Amarnath Yatra set to resume end of this month after two years of Covid avoidance.

Where to find more water: Eight unconventional resources to tap

MANZOOR QADIR AND VLADIMIR SMARHTIN
The right conditions. Direct delivery of seeding material to the clouds using aircraft and rockets gets the highest yield. Fog harvesting is also possible in some parts of the world. Remote communities in Chile, Morocco and South Africa have used vertical mesh nets to harvest fog for over 100 years. Visible sites are typically rural locations with frequent high elevation, exposed to wind flow. Advancements in materials and local knowledge have helped develop designs that are efficient in water collection. At times more than 20 litres can be collected on a dense fog day for every square metre of mesh. Average cost per litre can be less than $0.10. Desalination Desalination removing salt from seawater contributes over 100 million cubic metres of water a day, supporting about 5% of the world's population. Almost half (48%) of the global desalination capacity is located in the Middle East and North Africa region. New developments in desalination will likely make it the lowest-cost unconventional water source. Conventional water sources which rely on snowfall, rainfall and rivers are not enough to meet growing freshwater demand in water-scarce areas. Fortunately Earth has other sources of water: millions of cubic kilometres of water in glaciers, ice and permafrost, in the ballast holds of thousands of ships, and elsewhere. Our book, Unconventional Water Resources, based on the most up-to-date information, identifies eight broad categories of unconventional water sources. Resealing water Advanced treatment systems can convert wastewater into potable water. Treated wastewater provides 25% of the potable water supply of Windward, Hawaii's capital, for example. Today around 70% of municipal wastewater in high-income countries is treated, but only 8% in low-income countries. The annual volume of untreated municipal wastewater in low-income countries globally is estimated at just 171 km. This is because water use per capita in these cities is significantly lower than in high-income countries. Another water source that can be physically moved to water-scarce areas is ice. The more than 100,000 Arctic and Antarctic icebergs that melt into the ocean each year contain more freshwater than the world's oceans. A financial feasibility analysis of towing icebergs to California and Spain suggests it is an economically attractive option if the iceberg is to be used as bio-environmental water. Wrapping icebergs in a net and then a megabag would likely prevent breakup and reduce melting, studies suggest. Increasing water scarcity is a major cause of conflict, drought and migration. Water is also being seen as an instrument for international cooperation to achieve sustainable development. It's vital to tap into every available option.

Mobile addiction and new generation

The modern era is the era of information technology. Electronic devices like robots and mobile phones have become smarter than humans. In the modern era, mobile phones have become essential for students, unemployed youths as well as professionals. What is not there on this mobile? Clock, radio, camera, calculator, music player, TV, Internet, Facebook, Twitter, WhatsApp, everything is in this phone. As a result, we can spend our time beautifully with this device. We can enjoy a lot of entertainment, social networking. That is why we have become its mechanical slaves. Our open doors are closed to the world. As a result, the decreasing because of internet addiction. Everyone is becoming self-centred with the mobile phone in their hand. We nowadays laugh and cry only through mobile phones. Whoever does not have a mobile is added to the list of outcasts. In the modern world, we have lost our humanity and morality. We live in a consumerist world. There is only selfishness, conspiracy and artificiality all around. We are trapped in a great illusion in the concrete magic city, mobile has become a part of our life. We waste time creating a labour-averse culture. Using mobile phones for hours at a time has caused us to lose physical labour and time to physical exertion. With internet addition, we are not practicing design and getting up late in the morning which is not good for health at all. With internet addition, we are not practicing design and getting up late in the morning which is not good for health at all. Our life experience will be limited to Facebook timelines, WhatsApp conversations, and Instagram posts, as on YouTube etc. All gamified data, full holidays, reduced vociferous, etc. network etc. who does not have a mobile is added to the list of outcasts. In the modern world, we have lost our humanity and morality. We live in a consumerist world. There is only selfishness, conspiracy and artificiality all around. We are trapped in a great illusion in the concrete magic city, mobile has become a part of our life. We waste time creating a labour-averse culture. Using mobile phones for hours at a time has caused us to lose physical labour and time to physical exertion.
