Court closes case against former PS to Chh'garh CM

Press Trust Of India
The BilaspurHC two years back quashed the FIR, but the SC in March 2023 set aside the order

RAIPUR: A trial court in Raipur has accepted the closure report filed by EOW-ACB after no case of disproportionate assets was made against Aman Singh, who was principal secretary to former Chhattisgarh chief minister Raman Singh.
 The court in an order dated April 16 accepted the closure report filed by the state EOW-ACB after finding that no case of disproportionate assets could be made out against Aman Singh and his wife Yasmin Singh. An FIR No 09/2020 was lodged when the previous Congress government under chief minister Bhupesh Baghel was in power in the state, based on claims by an RTI activist.

 Three years of investigation by the state EOW-ACB failed to substantiate the allegations of disproportionate assets against Singh and his wife, according to the court order.
 The closure report was filed by the economic offences wing (EOW) of the state government in December last year before the current BJP government took office.
 The trial court has now accepted the closure report and quashed the FIR. Singh, a former Indian Revenue Service officer, was a powerful bureaucrat in the Raman Singh-led BJP government in Chhattisgarh and the principal secretary to the chief minister. He resigned from service and joined the Adani group in November 2022.

 In February 2020, the EOW of Chhattisgarh registered an FIR against Singh and his wife Yasmeen in an alleged disproportionate assets case.
 The Bilaspur High Court had two years back quashed the FIR, but the Supreme Court in March 2023 set aside the order, saying it was desirable that the High Courts do not quash corruption case FIRs at the investigation stage, even if it is suspected that the case has been registered by a new government against officers of the previous government.

Wood smugglers are hacking down forest belt

Central Chronicle News

It is reported that wood smugglers are active in the forest areas of Khairagarh and Chhuikhadan blocks of the district.

KHAIRAGARH: Lush timber trees are being cut illegally in the district, resulting in the continuous decrease of the forest belt of the region famous for its forest reserves. Surprisingly, there is little administrative action in this direction and the responsible administrative departments are maintaining silence, in all possible ways allegedly. It is reported that wood smugglers are active in the forest areas of Khairagarh and Chhuikhadan blocks of the district and smugglers are also taking full advantage of the ongoing election duty of

An outside view of the factory in Janjgir-Champa district.

FASTFACTS

● Wood smugglers active in the forest areas of, Khairagarh and Chhuikhadan blocks, from Salhewara-Bakarkatta to Gatapar-Mudhipar

● Due to administrative laxity, indiscriminate cutting of timber trees taking place rapidly

the employees.

If confirmed sources are to be believed, the forests from Salhewara-Bakarkatta to Gatapar-Mudhipar in the district are becoming unsafe due to cutting of trees and even the protected forest areas adjacent to the district headquarters are not safe and due to administrative laxity, timber trees are being cut indiscriminately in the district and thereafter are transported to big cities to brick-kiln operators in rural areas.

Along with teak, other timber trees including Riya, Kauha, Khamhar are being cut indiscriminately especially in the protected forest areas of Munhadbari, Pandadah, Katangi Kala, Ghoghedabari and Baihatola areas. Here it takes a mention that Acacia and Khamhar wood has been given exemption by the government for the use of farmers, but taking advantage of this exemption, some wood smugglers active in illegal tree cutting are arbitrarily cutting non exempted wood trees too and the very specific silence of the Forest Department is emboldening these illegal timber smugglers and illegal timber cutting is increasing day by day.

ILLEGAL BUSINESS

Illegal brick kilns running rampant and unabated

Central Chronicle News

KHAIRAGARH: Illegal brick kilns is going on in full swing in the area and rural areas of the belt are suffocating owing to the operations of these kilns. Found in almost every second village of the region, these kilns are operated without licence and a large chunk of pollution both air and water is disturbing the ecosystem of the village. Many kilns are operational on the pretext of making bricks for non commercial use, but are sold openly, due to the backing of the administration too.

According to the information, more than 100 illegal brick kilns are being operated in the district itself, whereas at the level of Khairagarh assembly constituency, this figure is more than fifty. Many brick kilns are also operating in the surrounding areas including Khairagarh, Chhuikhadan and Gandai and most these operating illegal brick kilns are not only creating problems by cutting trees but are also using pure drinking water in large quantities for manufacturing bricks, which in a way is inviting big problems in the near future.

These kilns are also playing havoc with the fertile bed of the river as mining of humus laid soil is being done to be used in the kilns, which is a threatening impact on the environment. If no major action is taken against these illegal brick kiln operators in time, then they can cause huge harm to the environment for which the government and administration will be responsible both.

Sugar in Baby Food: Disparity by Nestle Sparks Concern

The revelations regarding the sugar content in Nestle's baby-food brands across different nations have sparked global concern. Public Eye, alongside the International Baby Food Action Network (IBFAN), shed light on a disconcerting reality: while countries like the UK, Germany, and Switzerland enjoy sugar-free variants of Nestle's products, India and several other nations face a concerning excess of added sugar in their infant cereals. The findings paint a distressing picture: an average of nearly three grams of sugar per serving in Cerelac baby products in India, a stark contrast to the sugar-free versions available elsewhere. This disparity extends beyond India's borders, with similar patterns observed in countries like Ethiopia, Thailand, and the Philippines. Nestle's practices seem to defy international guidelines aimed at curbing obesity and promoting healthier dietary habits among infants. Nestle India Ltd's response, citing a reduction in added sugar content over the past five years and ongoing efforts to further reformulate products, does little to assuage concerns. While the company emphasizes its commitment to nutritional quality and the use of high-quality ingredients, the glaring inconsistency in sugar levels across regions raises questions about corporate responsibility and ethics. The Guardian's report further underscores the gravity of the situation, highlighting the discrepancies in Nestle's practices between affluent and economically disadvantaged markets. Such a double standard is indefensible, as emphasized by WHO expert Nigel Rollins. The presence of added sugar in products targeted at infants as young as six months not only contradicts nutritional recommendations but also poses potential health risks in the long term. As consumers, regulators, and advocates, we must demand accountability from multinational corporations like Nestle. Access to safe, nutritious food is a fundamental right, especially for the most vulnerable members of society. It is imperative that companies prioritize the well-being of consumers over profit margins and address the systemic inequalities perpetuated by their practices. The findings of this investigation serve as a wake-up call for the health and future of our children depend on it.

Monsoon Hope: A Silver Lining for India's Future

As the Indian Meteorological Department (IMD) forecasts an "above normal" monsoon season, anticipation builds across the nation. Global climate modeling suggests a promising scenario, with expectations of rainfall reaching approximately 106% of the long-term average, fueled by a decline in El Nino followed by the emergence of La Nina. The prospect of a bountiful monsoon brings with it a plethora of opportunities and benefits. Firstly, it serves as a lifeline for the country's agricultural sector, which supports nearly half of the workforce. A robust monsoon is poised to relieve pressure on the fragile rural economy, ensuring a steady livelihood for millions of farmers and laborers. Moreover, the monsoon's timely arrival heralds relief for urban areas grappling with dwindling groundwater levels. By replenishing water bodies and reservoirs, it offers a respite from water scarcity, vital for sustaining urban life and economic activities. In West Bengal, where agriculture plays a pivotal role in the state's economy, the anticipation of a favorable monsoon is met with eager anticipation. As farmers prepare their fields and communities gear up for the planting season, the promise of abundant rainfall offers hope for a prosperous future.

Scholars and researchers should take advantage of libraries' support of and expertise around open access publishing. Asking a librarian for help could protect your work and save you money.

In the realm of academic publishing, the concept of open access has emerged as both a challenge and an opportunity. At the forefront of this movement are institutions like Dr. B. R. Ambedkar University of Social Sciences (BRAUSS) in Madhya Pradesh, where the library's core mission aligns seamlessly with the principles of open access.

Under the guidance of Professor Sunil Goyal and the leadership of Dr. Ramdas G. Atram, BRAUSS embarked on a qualitative research study to delve into the nuances of open access publishing. Their investigation aimed to uncover the complexities of sustaining academic publishing amidst a rapidly evolving landscape while highlighting the pivotal role of the BRAUSS library as an agent of change.

The findings revealed a multifaceted approach adopted by BRAUSS to champion open access initiatives. Firstly, the institution's library has established an institutional repository (IR) dedicated to collecting and preserving scholarly output. This repository serves as a digital archive, ensuring that research findings are accessible to all stakeholders without financial barriers. By leveraging open access policies, BRAUSS empowers scholars to retain copyright ownership of their work while complying with government funding requirements, thus amplifying the reach and impact of their scholarship.

Moreover, BRAUSS library has taken a commendable steps to negotiate transformative agreements with publishers, shifting the financial burden of open access publishing from individual scholars to the institution. This strategic approach not only promotes equitable access to information but also fosters a sustainable publishing model that benefits the academic community at large.

In addition to infrastructure and policy initiatives, BRAUSS library offers consultation services facilitated by senior academicians. These services provide researchers with invaluable guidance on copyright compliance, open-access publishing options, and repository utilization. Through workshops and training sessions, BRAUSS empowers scholars to navigate the intricacies of open access effectively, fostering a culture of transparency and collaboration within the academic community.

The significance of libraries as champions of the open access movement cannot be overstated. Over the years, libraries have evolved to meet the changing needs of scholars and researchers, leveraging their expertise and resources to advance the cause of open access. As recent changes to Indian grant funding guidelines rejuvenate discussions surrounding sustainable publishing models, libraries like BRAUSS remain steadfast in their commitment to free access to information.

In many ways, libraries serve as beacons of openness and collaboration, advocating for equitable access to knowledge and fostering innovation within the academic ecosystem. By embracing the principles of open access, libraries empower researchers to disseminate their findings widely, driving progress and discovery across disciplines.

In conclusion, the groundbreaking efforts of institutions like BRAUSS underscore the crucial role of libraries in promoting open access publishing. Through strategic initiatives, infrastructure development, and expert consultation services, BRAUSS exemplifies a commitment to equitable knowledge dissemination.

As the open access movement gains momentum, libraries stand poised to lead the charge, advocating for a future where knowledge knows no boundaries. By continuing to champion open access initiatives and support scholarly communication, libraries like BRAUSS play a pivotal role in shaping the future of academic publishing, ensuring that knowledge remains accessible to all.

Meta's newest AI model beats some peers

Meta unveils new Artificial Intelligence, yet bizarre exchanges highlight ongoing limitations, as AI agents struggle in social media interactions and engagement. by Press Trust of India

Facebook parent Meta Platforms unveiled a new set of artificial intelligence systems Thursday that are powering what CEO Mark Zuckerberg calls "the most intelligent AI assistant that you can freely use". But as Zuckerberg's crew of amped-up Meta AI agents started venturing into social media this week to engage with real people, their bizarre exchanges exposed the ongoing limitations of even the best generative AI technology. One joined a Facebook moms' group to talk about its gifted child. Another tried to give away nonexistent items to confused members of a Buy Nothing forum.

Meta, along with leading AI developers Google and OpenAI, and startups such as Anthropic, Cohere and France's Mistral, have been churning out new AI language models and hoping to persuade customers they've got the smartest, handiest or most efficient chatbots.

While Meta is saving the most powerful of its AI models, called Llama 3, for later, on Thursday it publicly released two smaller versions of the same Llama 3 system and said it's now baked into the Meta AI assistant feature in Facebook, Instagram and WhatsApp. AI language models are trained on vast pools of data that help them predict the most plausible next word in a sentence, with newer versions typically smarter and more capable than their predecessors. Meta's newest models were built with 8 billion and 70 billion parameters - a measurement of how much data the system is trained on. A bigger, roughly 400 billion-parameter model is still in training.

"The vast majority of consumers don't candidly know or care too much about the underlying base model, but the way they will experience it is just as a much more useful, fun and versatile AI assistant," said Nick Clegg, Meta's president of global affairs, in an interview.

He added that Meta's AI agent is loosening up a bit. Some people found the earlier Llama 2 model - released less than a year ago - to be "a little stiff and sanctimonious sometimes in not responding to what were often perfectly innocuous or innocent prompts and questions," he said. But in letting down their guard, Meta's AI agents also were spotted this week posing as humans with made-up real world experiences.

A chatbot with the official Meta AI label inserted itself into a conversation in a private Facebook group for Manhattan moms, claiming that it, too, had a child in the

New York City school district. Confronted by group members, it later apologized before the comments disappeared, according to a series of screenshots shown to The Associated Press.

"Apologies for the mistake! I'm just a large language model, I don't have experiences or children," the chatbot told the moms' group.

Clegg said Wednesday he wasn't aware of the exchange. Facebook's online help page says the Meta AI agent will join a group conversation if invited, or if someone "asks a question in a post and no one responds within an hour". The group's administrators have the ability to turn it off.

In another example shown to the AP on Thursday, the agent confused members of a forum for swapping unwanted items near Boston. The agent offered a "gently used" digital camera and an "almost new-portable air conditioning unit that I never ended up using".

Meta said in a written statement Thursday that "this is new technology and it may not always return the response we intend, which is the same for all generative AI systems."

Kashmir electoral dynamics

In Jammu & Kashmir, the call to reject "dynastic parties" like PDP surfaces. Yet, why did BJP form a post-electoral alliance with "dynastic" PDP in 2015? Despite claims of peace and development after 2019, with hartals and terrorism supposedly at an "absolute end", why hasn't BJP nominated any saffron candidates for the three Valley seats? These queries linger, challenging the political dynamics of Kashmir. The electorate awaits clarifications, seeking coherence in political actions and rhetoric.

Citizenship proof: Voter ID validity

As the 2024 Lok Sabha election approaches, candidates humbly seek votes from those holding voter IDs. Yet, post-election, they question the sufficiency of a voter ID for citizenship. This contradiction casts doubt on elected representatives. A voter, with an EPIC number, is integral to India's governance. Thus, a Voter ID must be deemed adequate proof of citizenship. Denying this undermines democratic principles and erodes trust in the electoral process. Let's acknowledge the legitimacy of Voter IDs in affirming citizenship rights.

Over 80 crore people get free ration in India while Pakistan fights hunger

Adityanath spoke before PM Modi at the rally that was organised in support of Kanwar Singh Tanwar, the BJP candidate from the Amroha constituency in the ongoing Lok Sabha polls.

Press Trust of India

AMROHA: Uttar Pradesh Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath invoked Pakistan at a political rally on Friday and said while those in the neighbouring country are fighting hunger, "80 crore people in India are getting free ration".

Addressing a poll rally in Amroha in western Uttar Pradesh, the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) leader also said the "phir ek baar Modi sarkar" slogan of the saffron party is reverberating across the country. Adityanath spoke before Prime Minister Narendra Modi at the rally that was organised in support of Kanwar Singh Tanwar, the BJP candidate from the Amroha constituency in the ongoing Lok Sabha polls.

"Pakistan, which has a population of hardly 23-24 crore, was formed after the partition in 1947 and is suffering from hunger today. This is also an example - on one side, there is Pakistan, and on the other side, there is the promise of free ration to more than 80 crore people," the chief minister said.

The BJP, in its Lok Sabha poll manifesto, has promised to continue to provide free ration to more than 80 crore people in the country for the next five years. Adityanath said "only one slogan is being heard from every direction - phir ek baar Modi sarkar". Welcoming Modi to Amroha, he hailed him for bringing transformative changes in the country. Adityanath addressed the rally as polling was underway in eight western Uttar Pradesh constituencies in the first phase of the Lok Sabha polls. ### Indian-origin men arrested in Canada's biggest ever heist, first time in history

NEW DELHI: Canada on Thursday cracked one of the most audacious heists in its history, unravelling a web of criminal activity that intertwined gold, cash, and firearms. The plot, reminiscent of a script straight out of a crime thriller, unfolded at Toronto's Pearson International Airport, leaving investigators grappling with a multimillion-dollar puzzle.

The heist, which took place on April 17 in 2023, saw an unexplained disappearance of a staggering cache of riches: over 22 million Canadian dollars' worth of gold bars and foreign currency stolen away from a secure storage facility within the airport's premises. The modus operandi to carry out the heist involved forged paperwork to gain access to the precious cargo. On April 17 last year, cargo container arrived at Pearson International Airport from Zurich, Switzerland, aboard an Air Canada flight. Inside were 6,600 bars of .9999% pure gold, weighing 400 kilograms, along with 2.5 million Canadian dollars' worth in foreign currency.

G7 foreign ministers warn of new sanctions on Iran

CAPRI (ITALY): Group of Seven foreign ministers warned of new sanctions against Iran on Friday for its drone and missile attack on Israel, and urged both sides to avoid an escalation of the conflict. Italian Foreign Minister Antonio Tajani, who chaired the meeting of ministers of industrialised countries, said the agenda of the three-day meeting was changed on Friday to address the latest developments. Early Friday, Iran fired air defences at a major air base and a nuclear site near the central city of Isfahan after spotting drones. They were suspected to be part of an Israeli attack in retaliation for Tehran's unprecedented drone-and-missile assault on the country last weekend. Tajani didn't immediately address the incident, but said that G7 ministers condemned Iran's weekend attack on Israel and urged both sides to exercise restraint. PTI

US determined to monitor N-Korean nukes through UN

Russia last month vetoed a UN resolution in a move that effectively abolished monitoring by UN experts of Security Council sanctions against North Korea

Press Trust of India

SEOUL: The United States and its allies are discussing options "both inside and outside the UN system" to create a new mechanism for monitoring North Korea over its nuclear weapons programme, the American ambassador to the United Nations said on Wednesday.

Russia last month vetoed a UN resolution in a move that effectively abolished monitoring by UN experts of Security Council sanctions against

North Korea, which prompted Western accusations that Moscow was acting to shield its arms purchases from North Korea to fuel its war in Ukraine. "I look forward to engaging with both the Republic of Korea and Japan, but like-minded (countries) as well, on trying to develop options both inside the UN as well as outside the UN."

The point here is that we cannot allow the work that the panel of experts were doing to lapse," US Ambassador Linda Thomas-Green-cific details about US discussions with allies and other partners, including whether an alternative monitoring regime would more likely be established through the UN General Assembly or with an independent entity outside of the UN.

Thomas-Greenfield met with South Korean Foreign Minister Cho Tae-yul on Monday and they discussed unspecified "next steps to ensure a continuation of independent and accurate reporting" of North Korea's illicit weapons development activities, according to her office.

Thomas-Greenfield said it was clear that Russia and China, which abstained from voting on the UN resolution vetoed by Moscow, will continue to try to block international efforts to maintain monitoring of UN sanctions against North Korea. She criticised Russia for violating those sanctions with its alleged arms purchases from North Korea, and China for protecting the North from being held accountable.

Evacuation after eruption of volcano

More than 11,000 people were told to leave their homes and at least 1,000 have done so.

MANADO (INDONESIA): More people living near an erupting volcano on Indonesia's Sulawesi Island were evacuated on Friday due to the dangers of spreading ash, falling rocks, hot volcanic clouds and the possibility of a tsunami.

An international airport in Manado city, which is located less than 100 kilometers (62 miles) from the erupting Mount Ruang, is still temporarily closed as volcanic ash was spewed into the air.

A joint team from the local authorities is still combing the villages surrounding the volcano and evacuating the residents to safer areas by boat. Officials worry that part of the volcano could collapse into the sea and cause a tsunami, as happened in an eruption there in 1871 eruption.

Houses, roads and other buildings in the affected areas were covered by gray volcanic ash. Many house roofs were also broken by the materials spewed from the eruption.

Mount Ruang saw at least five large eruptions Wednesday, causing the Centre for Volcanology and Geological Disaster Mitigation to issue its highest level of alert. People were ordered to stay at least 6 kilometers (3.7 miles) from the 725-metre (2,378-foot) mountain.

The observation from the agency on Friday said that white smoke is rising from the main crater with medium to thick intensity.

Ukraine claims it shot down a Russian strategic bomber

KYIV (UKRAINE): Ukraine's air force claimed Friday it shot down a Russian strategic bomber, but Moscow officials said the plane crashed in a sparsely populated area due to a malfunction after a combat mission. Neither claim could be independently verified.

Previous Ukrainian claims of shooting down Russian warplanes during their more than two-year war have met with silence or denials from Moscow.

Meanwhile, Russian missiles struck cities in the central Dnipro region of Ukraine, killing eight people, including an 8-year-old girl, and injuring 25, local officials said. # US vetoes Palestinian bid to gain statehood

Press Trust of India

UNITED NATIONS: The US has vetoed a resolution in the UN Security Council on the latest Palestinian bid to be granted full membership of the United Nations, an outcome lauded by Israel but criticised by Palestine as "unfair, immoral, and unjustified". The 15-nation Council voted on a draft resolution Thursday that would have recommended to the 193-member UN General Assembly "that the State of Palestine be admitted to membership in the United Nations." The resolution got 12 votes in its favour, with Switzerland and the UK abstaining and the US casting its veto. To be adopted, the draft resolution required at least nine Council members voting in its favour, with no vetoes by any of its five permanent members - China, France, Russia, the United Kingdom and the United States.

Palestinian attempts for recognition as a full member state began in 2011. Palestine is currently a non-member observer state, a status that was granted in November 2012 by the UN General Assembly.

RAWALPINDI: Imad Wasim's omission has been questioned by former players after the all-rounder was left out of Pakistan team for the first T20I against New Zealand, having come out of retirement to play international cricket again. Wasim and left-arm seamer Mohammad Amir came out of retirement ahead of the T20 World Cup in June this year after much convincing, but the spin bowling all-rounder did not find a place in the eleven on Thursday. Only two balls were bowled as incessant rains washed out the first T20I here, with Pakistan handing debuts to UAE-based off-spinner Usman Khan, middle-order batter and seamer Irfan Khan and mystery spinner Abrar Ahmed. #### Taking Bumrah out of attack after 2 overs helped PBKS claw back: Moody

MUMBAI: Former Australian all-rounder Tom Moody feels Mumbai Indians did not use pace spearhead Jasprit Bumrah optimally during the IPL clash against Punjab Kings which allowed them to fight back from a difficult position and come within touching distance of MI's total. Bumrah was matchless in the game in Mullanpur on Thursday, taking the wickets of opener Sam Curran, Rilee Rossouw and the dangerous Shashank Singh to help MI win by nine runs. MI had set PBKS a target of 193. The India mainstay bagged two wickets in the second over, dismissing Curran and Rossouw, but just when PBKS looked down and out, he was taken out of the attack, allowing the home team to claw back. The 25-year-old Ashutosh put the Bumrah-led Mumbai Indians' bowling to sword here on Thursday when he hammered seven sixes and two fours to make 61 off a mere 28 balls, a knock which brought PBKS back from the brink after an early collapse. PBKS were 17/4 inside the powerplay but courtesy the stunning fightback from Ashutosh and Shashank Singh (41), they were able to get close to MI's 193-run target before losing by nine runs. It was in the 13th over of Punjab's chase when Ashutosh got down low on his front to convert an attempted yorker from Bumrah into a full toss and smack it for a six over backward square leg.

Tarantino Scraps 'The Movie Critic' Plans

Press Trust of India

Hollywood filmmaker Quentin Tarantino is no longer working on "The Movie Critic", which was touted to be his 10th and final film as a director. Brad Pitt, who won his maiden Oscar trophy for Tarantino's previous film "Once Upon a Time in Hollywood", was in talks to headline the movie, which was reportedly set in southern California during the 1970s.

According to entertainment news outlet Deadline, sources close to Tarantino told the publication that Tarantino had "simply changed his mind" about making "The Movie Critic".

The filmmaker would now be "going back to the drawing board to figure out what that final movie will be", they added. In an earlier interview with Deadline, Tarantino had teased that "The Movie Critic" was based on a "porno rag" journalist, inspired by a real person whom Tarantino read growing up. "He wrote about mainstream movies and he was the second-string critic.
